

Geography

As with History, Geography forms part of the school's cross curricular approach and pupils learn through first hand experiences in real life settings. It is challenging, motivating, topical and fun. Through high quality teaching and opportunities to exceed pupils are encouraged to become geographers by developing a lively and questioning awareness of their local surroundings and develop their curiosity and fascination about the world. Their interest and knowledge of the variety of physical and human conditions will extend from their local environment to the national and international scene. Within the places studied, children will acquire the skills necessary to make good progress and for the interpretation of geographical information and for geographical enquiry. Experiences include walks, guided visits, regular surveys and residential visits which all contribute towards a growing awareness and appreciation of the child's environment.
